The 3M National Teaching Fellowship is sponsored by both 3M Canada and the Society for Teaching and Learning in Higher Education (STLHE). Founded in 1986, the Fellowship honours exceptional contributions to teaching and learning at the post-secondary level.

“These ten educators will join the Fellowship community of over 300 dedicated and inspiring leaders who have all helped shape post-secondary education in Canada for the past three decades”, said Denise Stockley, President of STLHE. “Each recipient is a leader and educator who represents the Canadian post-secondary landscape at its best.”

“Canada faces unprecedented environmental, social and economic challenges in the coming decades. And tackling those challenges requires a highly skilled, resilient workforce,” said Penny Wise, President of 3M Canada. “By recognizing and honouring teachers who are innovating, evolving and equipping Canada's next generation of leaders, we're proud to help put a brighter future within reach."

The 2020 3M National Teaching Fellowship Award recipients are not only excellent teachers, but also leaders, both nationally and internationally, at their institutions and within their professional communities.

Recipients of the award each receive a lifetime membership for STLHE and are invited to a retreat with their cohort to share knowledge and create synergies to continue to promote leadership and excellence in teaching and learning.

STLHE and 3M Canada will officially welcome these amazing teachers into the Fellowship at the Annual Conference of STLHE which will be hosted in Ottawa June 9-12, 2020.
